Craniosacral Massage is a gentle yet powerful form of bodywork developed by osteopathic physicians. Through freeing restrictions in the movements of the cranial bones and sacrum, CSM directly influences the central nervous system and the fascia. In CSI, you will learn a protocol of techniques for releasing restrictions in the sutures of the skull as well as review how to feel for the Cranial Wave. CS II will expand on techniques taught in CS I. Unwinding, also known as regional positional release, will be practiced and additional releases for facial and intraoral sutures will be introduced.
