Graduates speak about Oregon School of Massage...

“I feel so fortunate to have chosen this school, not just because of the high-quality education and training, but more importantly for me is the intimate, caring environment. All the instructors and staff are genuinely caring, compassionate and understanding, and all of my classmates are so down to earth and non-judgmental. It has really made me feel that this is a wonderful atmosphere for me to be in.”

Nina Graham, LMT and OSM 2010 graduate

“My instructor models preparedness, command of her content, and adapts her delivery and teaching style effectively for each class group that OSM sends to her in a way that makes the complex content (Anatomy & Physiology and Pathology) seem familiar. I have consistently left her classes in awe of what I have just learned about the machine I inhabit, and am taking better care of my clients and myself as a result.”

Michael Coffey, former student 2014

“I have felt so prepared by OSM. The most helpful stuff were the experienced therapists sharing intangible things about how to negotiate expectations with clients and willing to show variations on technique whenever we asked... What I learned in communications/ethics class has been a lifesaver. Most of the other students I encounter in this area are not nearly as prepared as I have felt.”

Jason Minnix, OSM 2009 Graduate, practicing LMT in Texas

Why Choose Oregon School of Massage?

SCHEDULING OPTIONS THAT WORK FOR YOU

Students with an open schedule can complete the program in 15 months, however, this may require the student to take classes at both campuses.

UNIQUE APPROACH TO MASSAGE TRAINING

Our training involves the integration of knowledge, technical skills, emotion, and intuition. This emphasis on the integration of the somatic dimensions of healing, along with the rigorous study of the human body, defines our unique approach to therapeutic massage training.

Our program has an elective component that allows students to choose classes that fit their interests. The extensive array of electives includes Neuromuscular Therapy, Polarity, Reflexology and many more. Students may try a variety of different electives, or choose areas in which to specialize their training. These classes also serve as continuing education for licensed massage therapists. About Oregon School of Massage

Oregon School of Massage, founded in 1984, is a private, professional school devoted to massage and related health education. OSM has a commitment to holistic education, and our training is designed to integrate body, mind, heart and spirit. Central to our philosophy is the belief that touch is a powerful form of communication that carries complex messages for both giver and receiver. With this in mind, we have developed an emphasis on the integration of various dimensions of healing with the study of the human body.

Students can attend classes at either of OSM's two campuses. The Portland facility is located on Barbur Boulevard, with convenient freeway access from both the east and west sides of Portland. The Salem facility is located beside the Willamette River on Front Street. Here, classrooms face the river, and the building has a deck for nature breaks throughout the day. We offer morning (9am-noon), afternoon (1:30-4:30 pm) and evening classes (6:30-9:30 pm), Monday through Friday. Elective courses are offered in various weekend formats.

Oregon School of Massage's pre-licensing program successfully prepares our graduates for Oregon and Washington licensure as well as for many other states. OSM is endorsed by Commission on Massage Therapy Accreditation (COMTA).

It is also approved by both the Oregon and Washington State Massage Licensing Boards, and is licensed by the Oregon Higher Education Coordinating Commission. We also offer advanced certification programs in Maternity Massage and Shiatsu, which are open to current students, graduates and licensed massage therapists.

RAY SIDERIUS, OREGON SCHOOL OF MASSAGE PRESIDENT

started OSM in 1984 after practicing massage and developing a massage training program at the Ariadne Professional Center. The interdisciplinary (psychotherapy, medicine, massage, and mindfulness) approach to health care that evolved at Ariadne continues to be a key theme at OSM. Ray has served on the Oregon Department of Education Career School Advisory Committee and the National Board of Directors of the Association for Humanistic Psychology. He has taught a variety of massage and health science courses for OSM.

Massage and Bodywork Modalities

Sometimes consumers are curious about all the different types of massage and body work available. Here is a brief list of major types from www.abmp.com. For even more information read Discovering the Body's Wisdom by Mirka Knaster. OSM offers classes and certificates in many of these areas. See website for class offerings with descriptions.

CRANIO-SACRAL THERAPY

Cranio-sacral Therapy uses gentle touch to ease pain and deepen awareness. Because it works directly with the central nervous system, it affects all the other systems of the body. Cranio-sacral Therapy helps the body/mind use its own healing resources to initiate therapeutic change. For this reason, it is a subtle yet powerful form of bodywork.

HEATED STONE MASSAGE

For these treatments, the therapist uses heated basalt mineral stones and/or semi-precious stones that represent the chakras. Muscle tension melts away as the liquid smooth stones move over them. Heated Stone Massage also aligns subtle energies within the body bringing greater attunement and harmony.

MYOFASCIAL RELEASE

MFR is used to evaluate and treat restrictions in the body's connective tissue (muscles and fascia). Connective tissue includes tendons, ligaments, cartilage, fascia, joint capsules and the surface linings of the organs in the body. There are many methods of myofascial release which treat chronic pain, injuries, general aches and pains.

NEUROMUSCULAR THERAPY (NMT)

NMT is a comprehensive approach to treating trigger points. Trigger points are painful fibrous nodules in muscle and connective tissue. NMT incorporates diet, emotional help, and hydrotherapy with the soft tissue treatments.

PREGNANCY

Practitioners use a variety of bodywork techniques to relieve the stresses that result from the rapid and profound physical as well as mental changes that occur during pregnancy. Pregnancy massage is designed to relieve aches in the back, neck, hips, legs, and weight bearing joints.

SHIATSU

Shiatsu is a form of Oriental Therapy evolved from a 5000 years old tradition of healing arts. Shiatsu utilizes a combination of pressure-release and assisted-stretching techniques, allowing the recipient to relax deeply and to get in touch with their own healing power.

SWEDISH MASSAGE

This common technique is named for Swedish massage pioneer Peter Ling (1776-1839) and refers to a collection of techniques designed primarily to relax muscles and stimulate the circulation of blood through the body. It is typically performed with oil or lotion on receiver's skin while the rest of the body is covered in a draping sheet.

640 Hour Massage Certificate Program

MASSAGE TRAINING AT OREGON SCHOOL OF MASSAGE

Our 640-hour Massage Certificate Program teaches the use of various strokes to manipulate soft tissues, engaging the muscular, cardiovascular and nervous systems in order to reduce tissue tightness, enhance circulation, reduce pain and promote general relaxation. Practitioners usually work directly on the client's skin, using various lubricants. Students are also trained in treatment-focused bodywork as they progress in the program.

Students receive a foundation in Swedish massage and an introduction to Shiatsu techniques. Additionally, students are given 119 elective hours elective hours to explore a variety of massage techniques or specialize in a specific area of interest.

MESSAGE CERTIFICATE FOR HEALTH PROFESSIONALS

The Oregon Board of Massage Therapists offers a path to licensure for professionals currently holding an Oregon license in related health care fields, such as MD, ND, DC, PT, OT, RN, LPN, LAc. The applicant must complete a minimum of 300 hours of Massage Theory and Practical Application, Clinical Practice, Business Development, Communications and Ethics, and Sanitation. Kinesiology and Hydrotherapy may be included. The applicant must take and pass the MBLEx written exam and submit all prior education for licensure. OSM provides a 335-hour certificate program.

Graduate Services

In support of OSM graduates, we maintain a Community Bulletin Board and Graduate E-mail Service where a variety of job requests are posted and/or sent. Clinics, salons and medical offices consistently send ads for LMT positions and openings. During 2016 we sent over 190 job postings and heard from 30 graduates that they secured a position through this E-mail Service.

Many of our graduates choose to pursue private practices. We have a graduate referral service at the school and frequently recommend our graduates to individuals looking for an LMT. In addition, OSM Professional Clinic at the Portland campus is another opportunity for graduates to begin their practice.

Advanced Training

LMTs often decide to specialize once they have been in the marketplace for some time. OSM offers a variety of electives, areas of specialization, and certificate programs to meet professional training needs.

Launching your professional career

LICENSING

Most states require some form of training and licensing. Oregon requires 625 hours and Washington requires 500 hours of training. Please check www.massagetherapy.com/careers/stateboards.php to get the most current and comprehensive explanation of the requirements for other states.

For more information about regulation in Oregon, visit the Oregon Board of Massage Therapists web site at www.oregon.gov/obmt.

For Washington massage law information contact Washington Department of Health at www.doh.wa.gov/massage. OSM Admissions staff can also answer your licensure questions.

LICENSING IN OREGON

Massage licensure in Oregon requires an application including proof of 625 hours training, CPR, a background check and fees. Once approved, candidates take the Massage and Bodywork Licensing Exam. OSM graduates are well prepared for the Licensing Exam. When you pass the exam, you will submit a license application and fee. The time from graduating to licensure can be a few months.

JOB OUTLOOK

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics for the U.S. Department of Labor, employment of massage therapists is expected to increase by 22 percent from 2014 to 2024, faster than the average for all occupations. Employment will grow as more people learn about the benefits of massage therapy.

Where will you work?

Massage therapists define their careers based on their interests, financial needs, personal philosophy of wellness and their ideal work schedule. Below we have described just a few massage environments (Source: www.abmp.com). Your career is in your hands!

WELLNESS CENTERS

In this setting, the LMT (Licensed Massage Therapist) is one of many different types of healthcare providers; others may include a chiropractor, doctor, physical therapist, or nutritionist. Generally, LMTs are contractors and receive a percentage of the massage fee.

PRIVATE PRACTICE

LMTs who start a private practice may rent or buy office space or create a workspace in their homes. Self-employment allows the therapist to set their own work hours and fees, create their own work environment, and have control over the types of clients they see.

SPAS

Spas are one of the primary employers of massage therapists since massage is the most requested service in spa settings. The work can be creative and varied with the LMT providing different types of body treatments in one shift.

ON-SITE MASSAGE

On-site, seated, or chair massage is popular in an ever-growing variety of locations - malls, airports, events, and work places. You have no office space expense and the chairs are very portable. Sessions are typically 15 - 30 minutes and most LMTs charge $1/ minute.

MASSAGE IN A CLINICAL/MEDICAL SETTING

Opportunities for employment are available in a chiropractic office, hospital, hospice, sports medicine clinic, physical therapy office, or rehabilitation center. LMTs may be employees or contractors.

“As President of Oregon School of Massage, I am dedicated to bringing talented educators who are experts in their fields to our faculty. Several instructors are published authors and nationally recognized speakers.”
